WHAT MAKES THE METROPOL
LOCATION SO UNIQUE?

The site really is intriguing. It's a very important part of Canberra, where Ainslie Avenue comes and meets the city. This provides a transition from the city to the suburbs, meaning you can enjoy the best of life outside the city yet still capture everything the CBD has to offer – because it's right across the road.

METROPOL sits on a wonderful axis, with a radiating arm that extends from the heart of Canberra all the way up to the bushlands of Mount Ainslie. This gives the entire precinct – comprising three distinctly different yet carefully connected buildings – a rich and unique duality.

You're just moments from Glebe Park, the Canberra Centre, Braddon and Lake Burley Griffin. It's quite remarkable to have so much so close.

HOW WOULD YOU DEFINE THE METROPOL VISION?

We were very conscious of trying to create a meaningful sense of place at METROPOL. This part of Canberra has played a symbolic role in the city's history, due to its location on the Walter Burley Griffin plan. Griffin used major avenues to connect many of the key symbols of Australian democracy with the topography of Canberra and METROPOL sits directly on one of those, Ainslie Avenue.

The other consideration for us was that Canberra is one of few capitals where the city immediately meets suburbia. We wanted to capture this through a vision that is both urban and suburban.

To achieve this METROPOL features a butterfly design that creates a delightful flow and rhythm throughout each of the buildings, each with a different flavour yet still closely connected, while also embracing a vertical design language with stepped, angular forms and 'zigarat' façades. Most Canberra residential developments tend to be more horizontal.

WHERE DID THE DESIGN INSPIRATION COME FROM?

METROPOL had quite a few strands of inspiration. If you look around Canberra you'll see a lot of apartment buildings that look very similar. We took a boldly different approach.

Given the historic location, we drew great inspiration from some of the extraordinary civic buildings in Canberra such as the National Gallery, the High Court of Australia and the Carillon. They're from different architects and eras, but there is something very essential about those buildings that we've harnessed with METROPOL.

They are all very sculptural buildings. They're very strong and robust buildings. But they're also very simple buildings. They have a material palette that is very restrained and proving to stand the test of time. It's a palette of beautiful concrete elements, glass and precious metal finishes. These provide a soft, natural quality and age beautifully.

INSPIRATION

METROPOL NORTH

The embodiment of relaxed sophistication. It's modern, it's architectural, it pays homage to Canberra's most historical forms, but it also leans right into the future we know Canberra is promising. It shuts out the fast-paced city. It oozes calm and beckons you into its private sanctuary. It represents an inner-city habitat where vertical lines and angled façades deliver a commanding street presence.

METROPOL WEST

Its bold monochromatic interiors are easily transformed to your personal style. Its design vision is unashamedly bold, aspirational and entirely Australian. But it doesn't beat its own chest, at least, not without good reason. Every convenience has been carefully planned from the ground up to be the master of both style and substance. It is contemporary living. It's utter freedom for a sophisticated pallet.

METROPOL SOUTH

Moving effortlessly between work and life, socialising and meditating, this building represents the equilibrium – the place between that allows you to ease from fast to slow. With warm natural shades of gold and brass, striking contrasts of cream and black and tactile textures. It redefines what the modern apartment ought to be. A life that is entirely yours.

“OUR INSPIRATION

GREATEST CITIES”

GEOCON

THE METROPOL VISION IS RICH,
BOLD AND ASPIRATIONAL. IS CANBERRA READY FOR IT?

Absolutely, yes. Canberra is transforming from an urban, sprawling, suburban city, into a dense, beautiful, cool capital.

METROPOL is playing a part of that transformation by creating something very unique and special, with striking architecture, unique amenity and one of the best locations in Canberra, on a prominent street overlooking Glebe Park. I believe METROPOL is going to be one of the best places to live in the city.

WHAT GETS YOU EXCITED ABOUT METROPOL?

METROPOL is a striking new style of residential architecture for Canberra, that’s been exciting for everyone involved.

It’s certainly one of the most unique offerings we’ve seen in the market, with some of the best amenity on offer anywhere in Australia.

Being specific, it’s hard not to covet the location and the way it radiates outwards from the city centre, drawing you all the way up to Mount Ainslie.

We worked long and hard to secure this site, and we’re so glad we did. It’s one of the most prominent locations in Canberra.

The shared penthouse on Level 8 is another spectacular touch, with breathtaking views and facilities.

We’re also thrilled with the design vision and the way it takes inspiration from Canberra’s past, yet interprets it in a boldly modern way. It’s just so different to anything else in Canberra.
